

CASE

We know a fellow
Who drives a big car,
And he's so blamed shrewd
We know he got it
By starting with a flivver
And swapping it off
For a McLaughlin;
And trading that in
For a new Studebaker;
And swapping that off
For something else
And working up the line.
Because while he can afford
To have a Marmon,
Or a Pierce-Arrow,
He'd miss his dinner
Anytime for the chance
To get the best of a deal.
One day he lost
A golf match
(Which he doesn't often)
And it spoiled his lunch.
Because the other fellow
Won four golf balls.
And after lunch
He figured out a scheme
To get those balls
And went back to the club
And took them away.

And when we saw him
Wearing a new suit
We knew he wouldn't buy
it
Like anybody else—
It looked pretty fine
And fitted to a T.
So we asked the story,
And he laughed and said
He'd put one over on
The Care Shop.
"Went in at ten o'clock,
Picked out a suit,
"Made them make it over
Just the way I wanted it
"In their own workshop
"And got it the next day.
"So I really got
"A custom suit
"At a ready-made price."
And he chuckled again.
But between ourselves
He didn't put one over,
For you and I or anyone else
Can get the same
At the same price
At the same place.
WE THANK YOU.

OXFORD MEN TO SUPPORT THE LEAGUE

Keen Debaters Will Hold Battle of Wits.

TO-NIGHT AT R. V. C.

Visitors Fresh from Victory at Toronto.

Tonight McGill clashes arms with Oxford in debate. The air preceding the battle is densely charged with keen interest as to the outcome. On Monday night last, Oxford defeated the University of Toronto in a brilliant contest.

This last triumph for Oxford makes another addition to their long list of successes. But will Oxford defeat McGill? The subject: "Resolved, that the League of Nations is worthy of the Support of the Nations of the World." Is a new one to both teams. McGill who is to uphold the negative will have popular sentiment in her favor tonight. The judges will be Mr. S. M. MacDonald, Canon Shattford and Mr. C. J. Doherty, K. C., the latter being chief judge.

The Oxford team is a reputable one, being composed of A. G. Bagnall, president of the Oxford Debating Union and also of the National Union of Students, C. H. O. Scarfe of St. John's College and G. A. Gardiner of Magdalen College, a winner of the Newgate prize for English verse.

McGill will be ably represented by C. H. Penrose Arts '25; Forsey, Arts '25 and Batshaw, Law '29. The McGill team is a skillful one. Every man is a forcible and versatile debater. The debate which is being held in the Auditorium of the Royal Victoria College at 8:15 p. m. will be well worth hearing. The resolution to be discussed concerns a problem that affects every nation of any importance. It has rocked the minds of our greatest living statesmen especially since the recent Greco-Italian crisis which has made it a problem of current importance. And what has been the effect this crisis upon the attitude of the United States government? It is the opinion of many hitherto supporters of the League that Italy has dealt its prestige and function ability a blow from which it cannot recover. It remains for McGill to prove this tonight.

The subject of debate at Toronto last Monday was: "That the French occupation of the Ruhr is justifiable." Toronto upheld the affirmative. The visitors had already taken the negative side of this question in debates with several universities in the United States having won against Harvard, Vassar and Swarthmore and lost to Bates and George Washington, while (Continued on Page 2)

MUSICAL CONCERTS FOR COMING YEAR

Varied Programme Planned by Musical Association

Music lovers at McGill are to be treated to several concerts this year, according to plans laid out at the meeting of the McGill Musical Association in the Union yesterday afternoon. The meeting presided over by R. S. Logan, the president dealt with several important matters for the coming year. The new constitution was read and formally approved by those present. The Musical Association of McGill is to be composed of the Glee Club, the Mandolin Club, and the Classic Music Club, each of which has a representative on the Executive.

The probable expenditure of the Glee Club was estimated at three hundred and twenty dollars whilst the estimate for the Mandolin Club was put at one hundred and twenty five dollars.

The Classic Music Club plans to introduce several recitals this year. For this they will secure a special room with a piano which will be placed at the disposal of any students who wish to practice.

According to custom the Vice-President was then elected. A. T. Branscombe, President of the Mandolin Club was chosen to fill the position.

A request was then read from the University of Pennsylvania asking for co-operation and assistance in bringing down their Musical Club to give a concert in Montreal. It was decided to ask the help of the Kiwanis.

STUDENTS' MEETING MAINLY FINANCIAL

To-day at 11 a. m. in Union.

The Student's Society of McGill university hold their annual meeting to-day at 11 a. m. in the Union. This meeting is of very great importance and should be attended by every student because the business to be discussed is for their benefit. At this meeting all the important business matters affecting the various societies over which the student body have jurisdiction will be discussed in detail. An important item of the meeting will be the financial statement. This statement will as usual receive much attention and deliberation.

A report from the Union will be read from which a programme of events will be formulated.

The proposed budget for McGill Daily, Musical Society and the Literary and Debating Society will be read. The number of Societies under the jurisdiction of the Student Body are fewer this year on account of the appointment of Mr. Stuart Forbes. Mr. Forbes has control of all the athletic activities around college which formerly were under the Students Society.

TRAVELER SAYS EUROPE IS ON UNSTABILIZED BASIS

"Europe is in a mad way, both politically and economically," said Rev. James W. Filfield, Jr., 21, who spent a few days in Oberlin before returning to Chicago to resume his pastorate. Rev. Filfield, traveled 29,000 miles by land, water and air on a trip through Europe which lasted all summer. "Everything is on an unstabilized basis and an air of uncertainty abounds as no one knows what is to happen next. The Scandinavian countries seem to have fared the best of all, while in Germany conditions are most pathetic to say the least," Filfield said.

Wheat is cheaper than corn. And flour is higher than meal.

All sophomore and freshmen class presidents are requested to be on hand in the reading room of the Union tomorrow evening at 6 o'clock sharp. It is important that each class be represented.

"DAILY" STAFF IS ORGANIZED FOR SESSION

Selection Was Made From Many Applicants

GOOD WRITERS

Paper is Ready Equipped to Handle News.

After lengthy deliberation, the Daily's reporter staff for the year has been chosen. This year the field of applicants for positions as reporters were larger than for several years past, permitting a discriminating selection. As a result of this the standard of the articles in each issue is expected to be raised and a better "Daily" given to the student body.

Reporters must get in touch with the Assignment Editor at noon on the day which they are on duty, and be at the Daily office at seven o'clock of the same evening. If any reporter is unable to be on duty on his night for any reason he should notify the Assignment Editor that he is unable to be present and find out to what other night of that week he can be assigned.

At the end of the "Daily" year the vacancies in the News Board caused by graduation and promotion are filled by selection from the best reporters who have attended the full quota of nights and "Daily" pins are also presented for the best and most consistent work done.

Any new men wishing to try out or a place on the staff will be given every chance and if their ability warrants it these men will be assured of a position. Any such applicants please see Ted Newton at the Daily Office a 1:00 p. m. any day. The following is the staff chosen for the year: Sunday: In charge—A. J. M. Smith. Staff—H. R. Davis, A. S. Ross, V. CANON SHATTFORD ADDRESSES M.S.P.E.

Alumnae Entertain Second Year Students at Tea.

On Tuesday afternoon the M. S. P. E. Hostel was the scene of a very interesting gathering, when the Physical Ed. Alumnae entertained the Second Year Students at tea.

The tea room was prettily decorated with flowers in the ever popular colours—red and white.

The Alumnae were very fortunate in securing Canon Shattford to address the gathering. The theme of his talk was the importance of striving to attain and perfect one's ambitions. He stated that the three most important aims on a person's life should be to create, discover and recover something worth while.

At the close of Canon Shattford's address which was very much appreciated by the audience, Miss Hilda Bell, President of the Alumnae, moved a vote of thanks to the speaker, which was seconded by Miss Dorothy Caldwell.

Tea was then served and many old acquaintances were renewed and new ones made.

Among those assisting with the tea were Misses Lucille Lefebvre, Dorothy Caldwell, Jean Caldwell, Jean Collins, Estelle Little and Kay Gilmore.

At the close of the afternoon the Second Year Students gave their class yell, followed by three cheers for their hostesses.

MONTREAL, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 17, 1923.

THE STUDENTS' SOCIETY

The annual meeting of the Students' Society is being held this morning at eleven o'clock in the ball room of the Union. The financial statement for the year will be presented for discussion; club programmes will be outlined and general business will be dealt with. There are the brief statement of facts. There is nothing colourful, nothing exciting or hair-raising but yet, if the meeting is to be successful, the great room on the third floor must be filled with members of the undergraduate body.

We at McGill pride ourselves on being democratic and self-governing but in spite of this there are certain students who, in the past, have shown persistent apathy in connection with the business of the Students' Society. Yet it is these very same undergraduates who raise the first howls of protest, when the organization of government does not function, as smoothly as they would wish. They, knowing nothing, know everything and having no real information wish to inform the student world how things should be done.

In McGill there are well over two thousand students and all male undergraduates are members of the Society. Its business is their business and freshman, sophomore, junior and senior should all make an honest attempt to have a sound knowledge of the activities of the student body. Today's meeting is similar to a great congress of the people of the land to discuss the problems with which they are confronted and to deal with the policies which they are to adopt or refuse. This morning we shall be given a chance to voice our opinions. If we have criticisms of past actions we should make them. All lectures are being cancelled from eleven to one and no man can excuse himself on the plea of being required to present himself in the presence of a professor. The meeting is for us and if we are alive to our responsibilities and if we have even an ordinary interest in our own affairs, the ball room will not be large enough to accommodate the crowd that will be ready to listen to and discuss business when the opening hour arrives.

HEALTH AND STUDY

The ability to study depends in no small measure upon the health of the student, for mental concentration is difficult in the extreme, when one is hampered and worried by physical disabilities. The student, who has a sound body, has a decided advantage, generally speaking, over those, who do not rank so high in the category of physical perfections. Of course we have in our midst those of the ultra-studious type, who labour on day and night in spite of bodily handicaps and who often attain scholastic heights which are forbidden to mortals of a more ordinary and everyday calibre. But in all cases, whether a man or a woman is an exceptionally fine student, a mediocre student, or a poor student, careful attention should be directed to his or her physical welfare, for if through sheer neglect we allow ourselves to suffer a break-down, our studies suffer in the crash and our very lives may be threatened.

We all know that students in the first and second years are required to undergo a physical examination and to devote a certain number of hours to exercise. But at times men in the upper years, as well as a few isolated cases in the lower, neglect to attend to their physical welfare. They do not bother about being examined by the university medical authorities. They have not time—or is it that they are too unsystematic?—to participate in athletics. Their health, in many instances, becomes endangered and their whole career is placed in jeopardy.

The Ohio State Lantern in an editorial recently said: "Don't wait until you become sick before you consult a physician. See him annually for a thorough examination. Exercise daily in an effort to keep trim and fit to throw off disease germs of any sort." This is sound advice and should not be hard to put into practice. The realm of sport in McGill is of such a nature as to provide nearly every man with something in which he has a vital interest. There is nearly everything from fencing to water polo or from track work to boxing and no one can lay the charge of there being any lack of variety. The university authorities, moreover, are trying constantly to keep the physical standard of the undergraduates on a very high level and are always ready to assist, where assistance is required.

The academic year is just commencing and as we draw up our schedules for the season let us not neglect our physical being, for if we do our ability to study may be affected and the tell-tale results will be seen in our final standing.

MUSICAL CONCERT FOR COMING YEAR

a debate with Dartmouth resulted in a draw. It was a well prepared team that met Toronto, for they knew their strength and their weaknesses. Moreover, they had popular opinion with them. It was no surprise then that the judges unanimously awarded them the laurels for the excellence of their presentation. As regarded the actual merit of the proposition the audience were appointed arbiters and they decided by a vote of 895 to 775 in favor of the negative.

CONSIDERATION FOR PUBLIC MEN.

Exchange.
Believing that the thousands of visitors received by President Harding did much to break down his health, the American Philatelic Society recently cancelled an engagement to shake hands with President Coolidge. This custom of setting aside an hour daily for the reception of visitors frequently brought to the White House as many as 1,200 persons a day to shake the President's hand.
What a lot of trouble would have been avoided if Eve had said, "Yes we have no apples."

SCIENCE FOOTBALL TEAM SHAPING UP

First Game Against Commerce To-day.

Chances that the Science football team will repeat its performance of last year in capturing the inter-faculty championship are good according to information gleaned from members of this year's squad.

There are a number of men of last year's championship team trying to catch a place and there is lively competition all round. Mance in back again at snap, while Dingman and Goldie are working on the half line. Coffee is playing at flying wing and showing all kinds of form. The line is composed mostly of new material but in shaping up well. Hirkett who played for the R. M. C. seconds last year will probably do the kicking for this team. In practice he has been hitting some nice spirals and in addition gets both height and distance.

The team on the whole is well balanced and are right on their toes and fighting all the time. The men are out to make this year's team every bit as good as that of last. They have all the confidence in the world and figure on going a long way in the championship fight. Last year the team went right through the series without having a point scored against them and this year's squad is out to do the same.

To-day they attack up against Commerce in the opening game of the

UNION CAFETERIA

HIS MAJESTY'S

Perence Molnar has been a name to conjure with in the world of modern dramatists since his "Liliom" held the attention of the New York intelligentsia for a whole season a few years ago. With "Liliom," by deftly crossing the serious modern drama with the higher class comedy, he succeeded in achieving that something different that people had been hungering for, while at the same time he did not neglect his opportunity for throwing a few pebbles into some of the quiet pools of stagnant orthodoxy. "The Swan," which is playing at His Majesty's Theatre all this week, belongs very much to the same genre, though it is quite a good deal lighter and quite without a suspicion of didacticism or an attempt to solve any problem. Days never do anyway. I saw somewhere in an advance notice that it was a biting satire on European Royalty. In case anyone has been staying away from it on that account, agent was talking balderdash. It is not I hasten to assure them that the press, a satire on royalty to depict serene highnesses of being the possessors of ordinary human emotions.

"The Swan" is one of those plays that you have to nibble at slowly like a stick of barley-sugar. Mental digestion is not complete until two hours after the final curtain, but then Molnar is never obvious. The whole thing seems simple enough at first. There is the lovely Princess angling for a princeling and a throne, and there is the handsome young tutor of lovely for the table of a producer of cheap birth. What a splendid dish all ready musical comedies. All that it needs is a few table-spoonsful of democratic sentiment and your tutor can run away with the Princess. He even kisses him at the end of the second act to save him from the wrath of the Her Apparent who very naturally wishes to chastise him for a display of very bad manners. Then comes that gem of third act, when one realizes that the charming princess was only impelled by natural feelings of pity, and a glass of Tokay. Yes, I am sure it was that glass of Tokay that did it. If it had only been pity and, say Bergundy, the Princess Maria Dominica would never have had to use that pretty little smile on her daughter-in-law to be about the resemblance between royal personages and swans gliding over the untroubled surface of a pond, who must never, never try to climb the bank, because then they look very much like—geese. That was the only thing like a moral in the whole play, and it was only meant for those born to the parade. Looked around the house and the nearest thing to royalty that I could see was an industrial knight of pre-war vintage, and he certainly didn't look much like a swan.

Of course there isn't nearly as much "meat" in "The Swan" as there is in "Liliom," and quite half its charm lies in the finished acting and the soothing personality of Miss Eva LeGallienne as the Princess Alexandra. She is as graceful and refreshing as one of her post-father's daintiest balades. With her delicately modulated voice and her perfect carriage she fits right into the part, and her acting is flawless. The rest of the company is decidedly above the Montreal average. To Mr. Halliwell Hobbes should go special honours for his portrayal of Father Hayacinth, the worldly-wise Serene Highness taking his ease from mundane things in the habit of a religious order.

I suspect that Molnar created the Princesses Symphorosa and Beatrice to provide laughs for the Philistines in the audience. If he didn't they smack a little overmuch of the musical comedy stage to do him any credit. In spite of the rather hackneyed denouement "The Swan" is a decided intellectual treat, and even if one doesn't pretend to anything higher than the status of common or garden bonedhead there is always Miss Eva LeGallienne, who is an evening's entertainment in herself.

At an Executive meeting of the Societe Francaise which was held yesterday at R.V.C. it was decided that the first meeting of the Society should be held on Thursday, the twenty-fifth. M. Thomas, who is well-known in French circles of Montreal, and is a prominent lecturer of the Alliance Francaise, has very kindly consented to address the meeting. It is expected that as many R.V.C. students as possible take advantage of this opportunity of hearing him.

SOCIETE FRANCAISE TO HEAR M. THOMAS

The programme for the year was discussed, and it is expected that short plays, impromptu speaking and charades will contribute to it. One of the important features for the coming season will be a debate in which a number of each year will take part. It was also decided to try to arrange theatre parties and tours to the French points of interest in the city for the active members, active membership being granted upon the payment of fifty cents.

TENNIS TEAM GOES TO TORONTO TO-DAY

Sixth Man for Team to be Chosen This Morning

The elimination tennis matches for the selection of the team to represent McGill in the Intercollegiate championship Tennis Tournament will end up this morning. These matches have been continuing for the past two days and the following are those selected to date for the team: J. A. Wright, Morris, Leslie, Ramsay and T. Brown. Six men are needed. L. Brown plays T. Brown this morning. Should L. Brown take the match he will be the sixth man. If T. Brown wins, L. Brown must play Perry for the sixth place.

Wright and Morris will play several practice games of tennis this morning. The games are expected to draw many spectators as the Morris-Wright matches in the McGill Annual Tournament were considered the most interesting games in that Tournament.

The doubles-teams will be picked this afternoon. The first team will consist of Wright and Morris most likely. The entire tennis party will leave for Toronto to-night.

The Indoor Tennis Championship will be held in Montreal next week. Crocker, Morris, Wright, Leslie, T. Brown and Ramsay are among those representing McGill in this Tournament. McGill should clean up this year and land the championship.

SESSION OF MOOT COURT LAST NIGHT

The Closed Shop Principle on Trial

At a session of the Moot Court in the Law library last evening, the question as to whether or not workmen have a right of action, for being discharged by the employer, when such discharge has been brought about by the labour union to which they refused to belong was the subject of an argument before Chief Justice J. A. Mann of the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council of McGill University, on appeal from the Supreme Court of Canada.

The original action had been taken by the respondents against the appellants, two officials of an Alberta miners union, claiming damages on the ground of conspiracy to injure by procuring their dismissal, and by using the strike threat as unlawful intimidation to secure their object.

The lower courts had decided in favour of the plaintiffs, and the two mine officials appealed the case to the Privy Council. The appeal was taken on the grounds that the appellants had been merely messengers who had informed the mine manager of the union's decision to strike if the two offending plaintiffs did not become union members.

The case for the plaintiff-respondents was argued by H. J. Seman as senior counsel, assisted by J. S. Samuelson. The cause of the defendant-appellants was presented by C. O. Dowd, senior counsel, and H. O'Hagan, as junior counsel.

O'Hagan in opening the case for the appellants, took the stand that the union had acted merely to forward their own interests, and with no intention to harm the plaintiffs. He argued that the right of a union to strike in defence of their rights was something that had been determined by statute, and yet that the respondent's counsel would attempt to show that his clients had done wrong when they had merely conveyed information of this lawful intent to the manager of the mine.

C. O. Dowd, senior counsel for the appellants, then continued his colleague's plea. He cited other cases where union men had refused to work with non-unionists. If wrong had been done, then the whole union membership should have been held responsible, instead of singling out two members who after all had been but spokesmen for the rest. However, he failed to see how his clients could be judged guilty of conspiring to injure the respondents.

The case for the plaintiff-respondents was opened by their senior counsel H. J. Seman. In his argument he proceeded to point out the legal errors in his opponent's case, and how inapplicable to the present case were the instances he had cited. As examples, that conspiracy on the part of the two union officials existed, he fully believed, was the case, and proceeded to substantiate his opinion by references to legal authorities.

His junior counsel, J. S. Samuelson, then gave his exposition of the case. He established that the appellants in combination had interfered with the freedom of the plaintiff, with malicious intent to injure, and not merely to further their own interests. Now a man would perhaps defend himself against the ill-intent of another

RUGBY GAME FOR JUNIORS WITH LOYOLA

Return Match to be Played To-day.

SEVERAL INJURIES

Loyola Have One Point Lead.

This afternoon the McGill Juniors will meet the Loyola team on the latter's campus. If the game of last Wednesday is any criterion this one will be exceedingly good. It will be remembered that the last time these teams met the score was thirteen to twelve in favour of Loyola. To retain its place in the Junior race the McGill team must win over the Loyola squad by at least a point margin.

The McGill team will be considerably weakened because of injuries received by some of the players in last Wednesday's game. Captain Gorrie, Boucher, Glasco and Botterall will all be unable to play.

The Loyola squad is very heavy when compared to the McGill team and their half-backs and outside wings are very fast and these coupled with their ball-carrying and tackling renders the back line no small amount of ability. On the line they have several heavyweights who have been well coached in their duties.

The McGill squad has a half-line fully equal too if not better than Loyola's and on them will fall the big burden of overcoming their opponent's lead. Cameron, Gordon and Gill in the back-field work well together and can be relied upon to give good account of themselves. Bazin at quarter and Tucker at flying wing are a pair that should cause considerable worry to Loyola while Baker and Cameron at outside should be quite sufficient to hold the Loyola halves.

The line-up of the two teams follows:

| Left Half | Right Half |

MAY REVISE UNION HOUSE CONSTITUTION

Report Will be Submitted To-day.

A meeting of the Union House Committee was held in the Union yesterday at noon. Nearly all the members of the acting committee were present, and the President occupied the chair.

Several matters of importance were brought up, principally the proposed revision of the Union House constitution, which as it stands now, is in a very uncertain condition. It was decided to do some additional repairs to the Billiard tables and in a few weeks time the Billiard Room will be in better shape than it has been for some years. Number four Billiard table is to be recovered and new cushions are to be added which will fill a much needed want in this department of the Union. A motion was also passed authorizing the purchase of additional cues. It was pointed out that this particular branch of the building was always a revenue producer and that for this reason, if for no other, should be kept in perfect condition.

man, but against many banded together to do him a common wrong he was more or less helpless, so that his rights were the subject of many laws having to do with the freedom of the individual. Samuelson argued that the respondents had made every attempt to interfere with the freedom of the plaintiffs and that therefore in his opinion the appeal should be dismissed.

Justice Mann then announced that since the argument on both sides had been so well conducted, and each of the young lawyers had presented his case with a skill rivaling that of more experienced but not more learned counsel, he could do nothing else than reserve judgment on the case.

FROSH THEOLOGS PARADE BY NIGHT

Sophs Again Lay Heavy Hand on Yearlings.

A most interesting sequel to the recent festival given by the Arts Sophomores in honor of the freshmen, occurred the same evening in the form of a parade which originated at the Presbyterian College and marched around the district during the early hours of the evening.

It appears that one freshman was unable to take part to as great a degree as was hoped in the afternoon's entertainment, lest he be disappointed, special arrangements were made for him during the evening.

Shortly after supper, the sophomores having kindly attended to the major details, the guest of honor was informed all was in readiness and having donned his "habit de soir," the parade was formed.

The line that proceeded down McTavish Street was indeed one worthy of the occasion, led, as it was, by a stately theolog and, stepping out as a single unit to the strains of "Old McGill" rendered by the saxophone of the leader.

As with the recent parade in honor of the "war premier" the first stop was the Mount Royal Hotel. Here, short speeches were given outlining the purpose of the pilgrimage. From the Mount Royal the parade proceeded to the Grand Theatre where the most philanthropic freshmen gave out free tickets for coming events to the cheering crowds.

At Phillips Square, the gathering was fully as enthusiastic and nothing would do but that the idolized guest give a speech from the pedestal of the Edward VII monument.

The R. V. C. and "Physical Ed." students were given a good view of the cortege and after a short visit to their college home, having had a most successful and instructive evening.

COLLEGE SOCCER TEAM TO PLAY

Meets Team of S. S. Canada Next Tuesday.

The McGill Soccer team will make its first appearance on Thursday afternoon on the Campus where they play the team from the S. S. Canada.

Arrangements for a game with the S. S. Canada were completed Tuesday afternoon. The sailors team is well known and have several victories to their credit. McGill has not yet played a game this season but judging by the form of some of the players at practice, material for a very good team is not lacking.

There have been a good number of men turning out to the practices but there is no reason why more shouldn't make use of the opportunity to learn this fine game. First and second year men can get their gym attendance by coming to the practices which are held every afternoon. While the team is good and competition for places is keen there is always room for more men, and the manager asks everyone who has played at all or who is interested in the game, to turn out.

The team for Thursday's game has not yet been picked but there are some men who are pretty sure of places, sent for the best and most consistent will play centre half. Easterbrooke will play in the goal while Plant and Robb will be likely starters on the wing line.

Too Late

A young Miss was engaged to a tailor. But one night she went out with a tailor.

Oh! my God, said her pa;
Oh, Oh, said her pa;
It's too late but I'll certainly whole for.

She stuck a cane between his feet
And watched him sprawl with glee.
As he arose she said, "How sweet
Of you to fall for me!"
Pelican-Charparal.

The Dance schedule for the year was read as revised and forwarded immediately to the committee of Social Functions for approval. A committee of three was appointed to organize and run the first Informal Dance which is hoped will be held this month, subject, of course, to the approval of the Advisory Committee.

Permission was granted the Fencing Club to hold their practices in the Building wherever suitable quarters could be provided.

The president reported that dishes for the purpose of catering to banquets had already been purchased. Plans were also discussed for the holding of some additional smokers and it was decided to have a Billiard tournament before Christmas, with the possibility of another tournament after the holidays, should the success of the first one warrant it.

Cafeteria business was discussed and it was concluded that the business to date this year is well up to the standard of other years.

The Union House Committee will submit a full report of affairs of the Union at the meeting of the Student's Society to-day at eleven o'clock.

MANY ANSWER CALL ISSUED TO FENCERS

Last Year's Membership is Doubled.

ANCIENT ART

Should Appeal to Women Undergraduates.

At the meeting of the fencing department of the B. W. & F. in the annual Board Room of the Union yesterday at 5 p. m. considerable number of new faces demonstrated enthusiastically that fencing as a sport within the walls of old McGill is leading to new and greater heights. This is the largest turnout for fencing McGill has ever had. Fully fifty men, it is expected will practice this year, more than half of this number are newcomers to the art. This is of great importance, and a source of considerable encouragement to those who have been fencing last year. It means simply that the name of old McGill will not be last on the Intercollegiate list for fencing enthusiasts.

In past years fencing was rated at McGill as a minor sport far behind in point of view of popularity of all other activities. The reason for this does not interest one so much as does the enthusiasm of the new fencing executive who are strong to demonstrate to all the genuine qualities of fencing as an athletic activity. Fencing is a sport of great possibility, on a sound basis from the athletic point of view but holds much of its attraction and popularity for reasons altogether different. Fencing is a rare accomplishment. Not every Tom, Dick or Harry is a swordsmen.

Fencing is a gentlemanly sport. It is refined but not confined to gentlemen only. In most European countries women take as sincere an interest in fencing as men do, and have given ample evidence of their great proficiency. Fencing is practically the only sport in which women can compete with men on an equal basis as strength is not one of the qualifications necessary to be a fencer. It is much regretted that the ladies of McGill have not followed the sport as actively as the men, but there is no reason why any interest should not emerge in halls of the R. V. C.

The great sports that European students especial continental ones follow are association football—and fencing. The armories of every European university are never bereft of the sound of clashing steel and grinding blades. In the past, at McGill never more than a handful of fencers were interested. But things seem altogether different to-day.

Fencers are advised that for the time being practices will be held in the Ball Room of the Union. The first practice will be held Thursday from 5-6, the second practice will be held the following Monday. Fencing practices are therefore held on Mondays and Thursdays, under the expert coaching of M. Raimondi, a fencer of wide experience in the best school of Paris and for many years the chief fencing instructor at Oxford University. Enthusiasts need only supply themselves with one foil and a pair of rubber soled and heeled shoes. The Club will lend its members other paraphernalia such as masks and fencing jackets.

Those interested should join up immediately by handing their names to H. L. Silverstone of Arts '24 or H. Alkman of Arts '25.

THE HOMELAND

O the high valley, the little low hill,
And the cornfield over the sea,
The wind that rages and then lins
atill,
And the clouds that rest and flee!
O the grey island in the rainbow haze,
And the long thin spits of land,
The roughening pastures and the
atony ways,
And the golden flash of the sand!
O the red heather on the moss-
wrought rock,
And the fir trees stiff and straight,
The shaggy old sheep-dog barking at the flock,
And the rotten old five-barred gate;
O the brown bracken, the blackberry
bough,
The scent of the gorse in the air!
I shall love them ever as I love them
now,
I shall weary in heaven to be there!

DARING OF "DAILY" MAN AT THE R.V.C.

Mysterious rites of Initiation
Brought to Light.

FRESHIE OATH

Narrow Escape of Hero After Many Perilous Adventures.

A sacrifice that should be appreciated by every reader of the "Daily" was made yesterday afternoon, when a "Daily" reporter, having heard whispers of the mysteries which enshroud the initiatory ordination of Freshettes, challenging all the threats of the Sophomores, invaded the sacred precincts of the R. V. C. By using the greatest tact and utmost discretion, he succeeded in securing himself in a dark corner of the store room, adjoining the gymnasium, where his position afforded him an uninterrupted view of the happenings. As he had arranged a system of reflecting mirrors similar to those used in viewing the inner mechanisms of the tomb of a famous king in Egypt last year, he became so fascinated with the manoeuvres of the initiators and the fair ones in whom a non-erasable regard for the observance of the law was being instilled, that he was unaware of the fact that the key in the store room door was turned on the outside to safeguard its precious contents from any attacks that might be made thereon.

When the last verdant one had taken her oath of allegiance and given sufficient justification of the solemnity with which she regards the occasion, the reporter relaxed the tension of his gaze and as he arose to collect his conveniences of vision, he beheld that which caused him to wonder if he had been transferred in some miraculous way to the tomb of that celebrated Egyptian. Before his very eyes were two green orbs, of apparently saucer-size dimensions, which he did not at first recognize as those belonging to a species of the feline variety but rather thought them of another world. It was a hazardous task, indeed, to make a departure and it was at a late hour that he managed to revive sufficiently to divulge a few details of his observations to the "Daily."

One by one the odd hundred members of R.V.C. '27, blindfolded and with hands bound behind their backs, arrayed in strange attire, were precipitated into the gymnasium. After each had proved herself worthy of being a member of the baby class by her skill at such pastimes as rolling peanuts along the floor with the aid of her nose, she had to crawl through perilous tunnels constructed of the "equus" of the gymnasium. During her travels she was confronted with occasional obstacles which proved to be of such a nature as tended to retard her progress. Very often it became unavoidably necessary for her to discover the by perception of touch the nature of the contents of certain mysterious boxes, which were deposited at intervals along the route. Anyone who proved herself to be too obstreperous was administered a sufficient quantity of salt to correct the ailment. Those who still showed tendencies not to realize the solemnity of the occasion were duly daubed with aluminium jelly with noses of a rosy hue. Other details could not be gained beyond the fact that after all, the party seemed a gay one judging from the sounds, and cheering that followed the cutting of the cake which bore the solitary candle which symbolized the first birthday party of the R.V.C. baby class.

BIG ATTENDANCE AT TOWNSHIPS CLUB

Will Hold Dance in Future
Future.

The opening meeting of the Eastern Township Club was held last evening in the ball room of the Union. The spirit shows among the members promises a very successful year and that there will be a real "Esprit de Corps". The large number of new men present show that the fresh are out to boost the club from the start.

The club got right down to business, Mr. Rice being elected vice-President following Mr. Van Vliet's retirement. Committees with real pep were formed to make arrangements and sell tickets for a dance to take place in the near future.

Mr. C. Caswell, the President expressed the aims of the club. He said that its primary object was to get the men from the Eastern Townships together, to know each other better and to have a real feeling of duty toward this club.

The object of the meeting, he went on to say, was to arrange a programme for the year that every man in McGill from the Eastern Townships would enjoy. Owing to the grand success of last year's dances the club decided to start its social season with a dance. Everyone remembers the good time they had last year and with this year's

BOXING CLUB HAD LARGE ATTENDANCE

Opening Class Held Yesterday Afternoon.

HEAVIES NEEDED

Intercollegiate Meet to be Held
Here This Year.

The McGill boxing club opened its season yesterday afternoon with a class of fifty men at Molson's Hall. They were shown some of the fundamental points of the game, such as dodging, feinting and side-stepping, as well as a few of the elementary leads and counters.

Three majority of the class was composed of men who have come to McGill for the first time and look to be a likely bunch. This is a pleasing fact to note as it is upon them that the college depends to fill the gaps left by the boxers who graduate each year.

Many of last year's men who did so well at collegiate and intercollegiate meets were either in action or were watching from the side. Among these were Schleffer, Goldapple and Snow, all of whom have held a championship in the past and also Ablovitch, Kellner and Stohj who made a fine showing last year.

McGill was very successful last season, winning the majority of titles in the different weights and are looking forward to another successful year in the main art. The prospects in the lighter weights are very good, but so far there seems to be a scarcity in the heavy class. Ablovitch, of last year's intercollegiate team is the only heavy man out so far.

Much credit is due to Instructor Robinson for the past success of the boxing club. He has been very successful in making good boxers out of comparatively new material during the time he has been instructor. McGill has always held a high place in intercollegiate boxing.

The intercollegiate meet this year will be held early in February and takes place in Montreal. The club also expects to hold exhibition meets with city clubs such as M.A.A.A. and N.A.A.A.

It is intended to have a ring built in the field house at the Stadium now used by the rugby teams as living quarters. This will aid in the instruction of the finer points and also serve as a proper environment for the boxers.

TENNIS FINALS AT 2.30. TO-DAY

Miss Robertson to Play Miss Stocking.

The game between Miss Frances Stocking and Miss Glen Cameron in the semi-finals of the R. V. C. Tennis tournament was played off yesterday at 2 o'clock on the court and although behind the score the R. V. C. was 6-1, 6-1 in favour of Miss Stocking it was certainly a match well worth while.

The match opened with Miss Cameron serving and although her balls were well placed and her rallying was excellent Miss Stocking's backhand strokes secured her the first game and the four succeeding ones. Miss Cameron won the sixth game and the seventh went to Miss Stocking thus ending the first set with the score 6-1 in favour of Miss Stocking.

The second set promised to be a brilliant one and the play was quick and intense. Miss Stocking won the first four games. The fifth game was won by Miss Cameron and although the playing was brilliant on both sides Miss Cameron carried off the two following games and ended the second set 6-1 in her favour. In spite of the fact that the score was rather one-sided there were several duce games. Miss Cameron's returns were not always as steady and well placed as those of her opponent her playing was excellent and the first year were indeed well represented in the semi-finals. Miss Stocking's sound judgment and her famous backhand returns were much in evidence throughout the game.

The title of tennis champion now rests between Miss Carol Robertson who held the championship in '22 and Miss Frances Stocking, who won the laurels of the sport last year. Both players have shown themselves to be in the best of condition and all things promise a very keenly contested battle in the finals, which are to be played this afternoon at two thirty.

spirit and new men things should surely travel. Every man present should do his best to make the activities of the club known to all E. T. men about the campus.

Before the meeting broke up old acquaintances were renewed and the new members got better acquainted with other members of the club.

OTHER CAMPUSES

Big Registration at Penn State

The number of new students at Pennsylvania State College is expected to pass the 1100 mark, according to an announcement from the registrar, W. K. Hoffman.

The new students include: 949 freshmen, 84 of them girls; 14 sophomores, 17 juniors, two seniors, five graduates, 13 specials and 52 two-year agricultural course students. Classes started last Wednesday.

More students from other colleges and universities desire to transfer to Penn State this year than ever before. Dr. C. E. Marquardt, the college examiner received 500 such applications during the summer months. Due to crowded conditions only about 100 such applicants can be admitted. At least half of them are sophomores. The total enrollment at Penn State has not been announced as yet, but is expected to reach the 3000 capacity figure.

To Raise Fund

Boston University on November 2 will ask the aid of the general public in assembling a fund of $1,000,000 in Greater Boston for endowment purposes. Beginning November 2 and ending November 10, the university will endeavor to raise a 50th anniversary fund in connection with its 50th anniversary celebration. Active preparations for the fund have been opened at 30 Federal street in the building formerly occupied by Brown-Howland Company.

What are Professors For?

Recently a question was asked of three Hopkins men and three different answers were obtained.

"What," was the query, "is the purpose of professors?"

"That's easy," replied the student A: "to make our lives miserable of course."

Student B did not hesitate long before he answered, "To teach us courses in various subjects."

Student C thought a while. "Well," he finally answered, "I would say to guide us in our studies."

Each of these replies was somewhat disappointing for, although all three may contain an element of truth, it seems as if something is lacking.

If one turns to page two of the Y. M. C. A. handbook he will see that President Goodnow, in speaking of the University, has this to say: "The older members of this association to which both instructors and students belong—"

What does this mean? Simply this: that while your professors may be instrumental in making your life miserable that while they may be here merely to teach you and that while their purpose may be to guide you in your studies, nevertheless you and your instructors are both members of the same association and a more intimate relation should exist between the two types of members.

Why a more intimate relation?

Your professors, to a man, are older, more experienced and have seen more of the world than you. Some experienced teachers, some fairly new at the game, are all anxious to help the students. They can tell you much you have never heard of; they can help

INTEREST IN TRACK MEET RUNNING HIGH

Great Effort Will be Made by McGill to Repeat Former Successes.

VARSITY STRONG

Merits of Fine Blue and White
Team not to be Under-estimated.

Interest in the coming intercollegiate Track Meet runs high at this time; and there is reason for it. On Friday the first three major championships will be awarded and it is very uncertain what university will take off the honors. For so many years McGill has held the championship, that the process of winning it has become a natural one, or at least has appeared such to the casual on-looker. Actually, however, this has not been the case. Every year the wearers of the red and white have been successful on the track, they have earned their success by consistent and strenuous practice. It is this, combined with the fact that they have always had first class coaching, that has kept them out at the front you solve problems which crop up in your life; they can inspire you. But not with the present state of relations existing between faculty and students.

How a more intimate relation?

Go to your instructor when he hasn't a class. Sit down and talk to him. If you haven't anything in particular on your mind, engage him in conversation. He may be busy at the time, and if he is, he will not hesitate to tell you so. If he isn't he will probably be only too glad to talk.

There is a big purpose which professors can fulfill besides those of teaching and guiding us in our studies—namely to inspire us.

Such an intimate relation between faculty should and could exist. It's up to the students. True some will accuse you of handshaking. Why worry about that? Columbus was accused of being crabby.

Will the bandsman who borrowed a lyre from Mr. J. J. Gagnier for his instrument last Saturday please return it to R. S. Logan who is responsible for it or leave it with Porter at Union.

"LEGS IS LEGS"

Legs to the right of us
Legs to the left of us
Legs in front of us
How they display them.
On they go trippingly
Daintily and skippingly
Just that bites nippingly
Does not dismay them.
Straight legs and banty ones
Poor legs and dandy ones
Awkward and handy ones
Flirt with the breezes.
Round legs and flatter ones
Thin legs and fatter ones
Especially the latter ones
Showing their knees
Knock-kneed and bony ones
Real legs and phoney ones
Silk-covered tony ones
Second to none.
Straight and distorted ones
Mates and ill-sorted ones
Home and imported ones
Ain't we got fun.

ever since the year 1911. They have not always won as easily as last year; often the fight has been a hard one, and sometimes the battle has remained undecided until the call for the last race. This year, McGill followers are placing their hopes in the track team once more, confident that it will show the public that old McGill is "all right" in athletic powers just as much as in spirit and in good sportsmanship.

The worth of the Varsity team is not being underestimated. They have always had a good team, and this year they are believed to have a better aggregation than ever. From their showing in their own meets they should contest every event very closely, and pile up points wherever they can. Queen's and her runners are as yet an unknown quantity, but it is well-known that her representatives in the two other major forms of sport are not to be looked down upon, and if she sends a track team to Toronto it will be worthy of wearing the red, yellow and blue.

It is unnecessary again to make individual mention of the McGill team. They are all well-known, and perhaps will be better known and more appreciated on Saturday morning, when the results of the meet will appear in the "Daily."

The team is expected to leave Montreal tomorrow morning, arriving at Toronto the same night, which will give them the benefit of a good night's sleep before the meet. As the great event is scheduled for 1.30 p.m. at the Varsity Stadium, final preparations will probably occupy most of the morning. If the meet is run off quickly, it is possible that the results will be known in Montreal sometime about six o'clock, although definite announcement of this will be made in a later copy of this paper.
